GENERAL INFORMATION

The National Center on Youth Prevention, Treatment, and Recovery, in partnership with SAMHSA and the Bureau of Indian Affairs/Office of Justice Services, will be hosting the annual Joint Meeting on Youth Prevention, Treatment, and Recovery (JMYPTR), which aims to promote and improve substance use prevention, early intervention, harm reduction, treatment, and recovery efforts among children, adolescents, and emerging adults.

The conference provides a dynamic and interactive forum for the exchange of research, policy, and clinical information among researchers, practitioners, policymakers, and youth and families. The annual Pathways to Wellness Recidivism Reduction Initiative Forum will be fully integrated into the prevention, treatment, and recovery tracks of the conference and will provide avenues of culturally responsive information to share among all conference participants interested in improving the wellbeing of Native communities and beyond.

ANTICIPATED REACH

We anticipate about 500 people attending this conference. This includes people with lived experience, their loved ones, researchers, clinicians, and policy makers. Our 2024 inaugural Joint Meeting had 445 delegates spanning 6 countries, 31 Tribal nations, and 38 U.S. states and featured 129 presentations, showing the widespread national dedication to our mission of bringing youth back to the top of our nation's prevention, treatment, and recovery substance use agenda.
